Explanation why Spinosad is considered to be the only effective plant protection product:

3. Basic principles of Naturland for the application of Spinosad:
The utilization of Spinosad is only permitted on a case-by-case basis (for an individual operation and case) and a lack of alternative inputs, on application and under further restrictions. In particular the three main disadvantages (harmful effect on bees, problem of residues and resistances) have to be considered.
The application of Spinosad is only permitted for vegetables, fruits, ornamental plants, grape vine, hops (in compliance with the plant protection law of the respective country).
No application in arable farming incl. potatoes!
The frequency of application has to be reduced with respect to the official approval for certain crops (→ see 8. Conditions/Annotations).
For reasons of quality assurance a double waiting period in relation to the official waiting periods is required for certain crops (→ see 8. Conditions/Annotations).
Residue testing of marketed products are compulsory for a further development of quality assurance conditions that may be required.
